

Welcome to Madrid

Located in a building representative of 19th century industrial architecture, the Joaquín Leguina Regional Library was created in 1989 to become the first bibliographic centre in the Community of Madrid's Library System , whereby its mission is to bring together, conserve and spread Madrid's bibliographic heritage as well as printed material or that produced by any procedure or on any medium in Madrid and/or its Community.

With a surface area of 12,075 square metres, the library is divided into eight floors. As it is a centre for the conservation of bibliographic heritage, there is no borrowing service, so its archives, located in deposits, must be consulted inside the facilities.

The building was constructed to plans by the German engineer, Langeloth, and under the technical management of the architect, Jimenez Corera. In 1900, it was opened as "El Águila" brewery , closed in 1985. Following its refurbishment by the architects, Emilio Tuñón and Luis Mansilla, it was turned into a library, which forms part of the El Aguila Complex.

Services

P Aparcamiento de pago	B Biblioteca
i Puntos de información	g Servicio de visitas guiadas

Interest data

Address

Calle de Ramírez de Prado, 3 28045

Telephone

(+34) 91 720 88 50

Web

<http://www.madrid.org/bibliotecaregional/>

Bus

8, 19, 45, 47, 59, 85, 86, 102, 152, 247

Tourist area

Otros

Email

biblio.regional@madrid.org

Metro

Delicias (L3)

Cercanías (Local train)

Madrid-Delicias

Price

Free Entrance

To consult its collection, you must be 18 and hold a reader's card for the Library Network in the Community or a researcher's card.

Opening times

Mon - Fri: 9am - 1pm / 4pm - 8pm (provisional opening times)

Guided tours of approximately one hour in groups of 10 to 20 people by prior arrangement. Further information at: difusion.brm@madrid.org

PÁGINA OFICIAL DE TURISMO DE LA CIUDAD DE MADRID

